On the cover: Lenny Hunter © Coppenrath Verlag GmbH & Co. KG; Illustration by Silvio Neuendorf

Dear friends, partners and colleagues,

On 16 May 1994, Felix, the rabbit with a passion for travelling, embarked on his first adventure. To this day, Felix continues to show children the diversity of our world, introducing them to foreign cultures and languages, but never forgetting his roots. After all, there is no place like home. With over 50 million Felix books and merchandise products sold, we are proud to continue the success story with An Austrian Journey with Felix - Happy 30th Anniversary!

You know that feeling when everything seems to be working out? You have an idea, a plan, and you get your team on board. You get creative, and start organising and setting wheels in motion. You see the first results, and everyone looks at one another and thinks, "Wow - that's exactly how I imagined it!" It's just such a satisfying moment! We had one of these moments in the last few months - and the result is Lenny Hunter.

When the germ of the idea was born and we spoke to THiLO and Silvio Neuendorf, having decided on racoons and an adventure story, both were enthusiastic immediately. The first ideas went in, the first drawings reached us and... it was love at first sight and we're so happy to be able to share him with you at last.

But Lenny isn't the only one we're excited about. Mo, the Little Mouse and Jessi, the Looting Bunny are some other highlights in our list. The Polidoris are embarking on new adventures, and Anna Fleck is whisking us away to the frozen north with Frost Stars - plenty to look forward to.

"After Sea Glow I couldn't imagine a more brilliant romantasy novel - but once again, Anna's new manuscript exceeded all my expectations!" says editor Frauke Reitze, who like many Anna Fleck fans can hardly wait to have the finished book in her hands.

Please keep your eyes open for new favourite titles and enjoy these pages.

A trip around the world in 80 days – that's 1,920 hours or 115,200 minutes – could it be possible?
In 1872, the eccentric gentleman Phileas Fogg takes on this seemingly hopeless bet, and stakes his fortune on it. "And when do we start?" "Right away." Together with his fun-loving servant Jean Passepartout, 20,000 pounds in his luggage, and an enviably relaxed attitude, Fogg sets off without delay. It's the starting gun for one of the best-known literary races against time, and the beginning of a tumultuous adventure full of unforeseen events – because time is not the only thing that threatens to catch up with the travellers.

"Climb down into the crater of the Snæfellsjökull, o valiant traveller, and you will reach the centre of the earth."
The inquisitive Professor Lidenbrock and his nephew Axel discover this message from a 16th-century alchemist in a coded document. Hungry for knowledge, the two scientists set off immediately for Iceland and, with their steadfast guide Hans, they rappel down through the volcano to the earth's core. On their fantastical journey through breath-taking underground landscapes and various epochs of the earth's history, they make some astonishing discoveries and find themselves on exciting adventures.

In the year 1867, the frigate Abraham Lincoln is sent on an expedition to hunt the mysterious, gigantic creature that has for some time been making the world's oceans unsafe and has caused a great many shipwrecks. On board are the natural scientist Pierre Aronnax, his unflappable assistant Conseil and the intrepid whale hunter Ned Land. When the three men go overboard in a struggle with the monster, they learn its true nature. Together with Captain Nemo, they embark on an adventure that takes them through the depths and wonders of the seas.

"Beware; for I am fearless, and therefore powerful."
 Following his mother's early death, Viktor Frankenstein has only one aim in life: to find a way to conquer death – no matter what. He finds the answer not in the mystical writings of Middle Ages alchemists, but in the study of modern science, and – blinded by the power of possibility – he ignores all morality and misgivings. But when Viktor actually manages to create a new creature from the mortal remains of various people, it is not the perfect human he had in mind, but a repulsive travesty. Viktor flees from the creature in disgust. But the monster is not minded to grant his creator a happy life while he himself lives in anguish and misery. Bound together by irreconcilable hatred, the creature and his creator have just one aim: to make the other pay for the suffering they have brought...

When Ishmael decides to sign on to the whaling ship Pequod, he has no idea what a dangerous endeavour he is embarking on. For Captain Ahab, this is no ordinary whaling voyage: Filled with hatred and driven by an insatiable desire for revenge, his only goal is to kill Moby Dick – the gigantic white whale that once caused him to lose his leg. This obsessive hunt turns into an adventure on the high seas that reveals the dark abysses of the human soul in a constant battle against nature.

- New dilogy – entered bestseller list at no. 14
- Dark Romantasy: perfect for fans of "Crave" and "Wednesday"
- Strong protagonist with a sharp tongue
- Captivating enemies-to-lovers romance
- Full of humour and emotion narrated by new discovery Tina Köpke

Katrina Smythe is 18 years old, a high school student and has been undead for a year. A stroke of luck, as she's finally rid of all that tedious emotional stuff: pain, jealousy, excitement – no longer a problem for her! Instead, she is strong and fits in much better with her unusual family of vampires, witches and werewolves. However, everything changes when the new boy next door, Tate Walker, rings their doorbell. Not only is he outrageously handsome, but unfortunately he is also a member of a family of hunters – the archenemies of all supernaturals. But then the unbelievable happens: The Walkers don't attack, but ask the Smythes for help. And Katrina and Tate become closer than either of them would like. After a failed soul escape, they can only move a few metres away from each other. It doesn't get any more horrifying than this – even for an undead woman!

- An exciting adventure by successful author Usch Luhn
- With clever girl character Leo in a magical dilemma

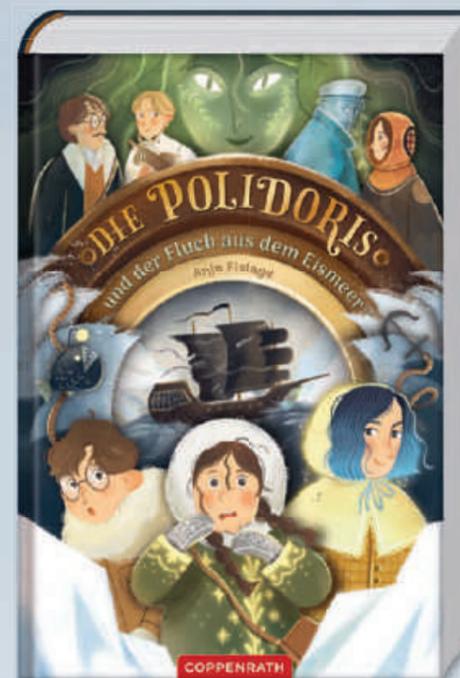

Strange things have been happening in the life of Leandra, called Leo, for some time now: why is her normally so gentle mom Phaedra suddenly going berserk all the time? Why are fireflies and red dragonflies chasing Leo? And why is she not allowed to ride Ouilil, Phaedra's noble grey horse, at any price? Slowly, Leo uncovers a dark family secret: her lovely mother is actually a "thirteenth" ... an evil fairy! She has been hidden in the human world so that she doesn't have to fulfil her destiny. But the fairies want to get her back. When Leo climbs onto Ouilil's back one night, he turns out to be a Pegasus. With his help, she enters the fairy kingdom – and a sinister power takes possession of her. Is she an evil fairy herself? Leo has to decide which side she is on ...

When Jacob's morning shower instructs him to come to the garden at midnight, he has an inkling that nothing is going to be normal any more. And before he knows it, he is climbing through a mouse hole down into the depths of the earth to save the world. It's lucky his best friends Taio and Lili are with him. Though unluckily, his little sister Putte has come along as well... Unfortunately, it all gets quite dangerous. For the world, but also for the four children: the elemental beings have got their sights on them. Totally subterranean!

Please Don't Play With Fire! - Vol. 2 NEW
ISBN 978-3-649-64212-1

Lili is totally excited: she's supposed to be an elemental creature too, yay! Just like Jacob, Taio and Putte – at least that's what Nereide, the unfriendly water girl, claims. Lili immediately dreams of flying ... it would be so great to be an air creature! But just then, Putte is kidnapped by a fire creature. And flames suddenly shoot out of Lili's hand. Damn, damn, damn! Lili doesn't want to be a fire creature if they're that stupid! But even more important now: How do they get to the secret realm in Tierra del Fuego to save Putte (and the world a bit too, of course)?

Anna Herzog has four children, speaks French, Russian and Medicine, and believes in dragons and root knobbles. She would love to climb down into the depths of the earth herself and discover its secrets. If only she had the time...

Mandy Schlundt studied design communication. She lives in Portugal with her three children, her partner and a lot of animals.

The ACE-Scouts are on the alert: their favourite teacher, McFinnegan, has disappeared! His trail goes cold in Paris, where he was attending a cartography conference – at a secret apartment in the Eiffel Tower. Of course, the four of them fly to France at once to search for the old Scot. They soon realise that something strange is going on here! Gargoyles come to life, and the dead don't seem to be dead any more. All this appears to have something to do with the old map that McFinnegan was investigating. Together with Leclerc, their annoying substitute teacher, the Scouts try to solve the mystery, and finally end up in an enchanted valley, where nothing is as it seems...

- Lovably quirky characters and a thrilling case
- Witty, warm storytelling from Jutta Wilke

Finja is fed up! Her dad doesn't have time for her any more, and Emil only has eyes for his new girlfriend Juma. Everyone else in the neighbourhood seems to have lost their minds, too. People are falling in love all over the place. And then, to top it all, Lotto-Werner gets arrested! Luckily Finja is a real detective, and she's going to solve this case. All by herself! She can do without a friend like Emil ... or does she?

A Case for the Detective and Me
 10+ / 320 pp. / hardcover with spot-UV varnish / € 15.00
 ISBN 978-3-649-61511-8
 All rights available

- Detective story with adorably quirky characters: Three good-hearted, funny junior detectives
- Illustrated by the unmistakable Ulf K.

Emil is in a real predicament! First his teacher, mean old Miss Bertram, took his notebook away, and now Karl has mysteriously vanished. And Karl is not just the only adult who has time for Emil; he's also Emil's biggest fan. Emil, by the way, is a crime writer. But this case is too tricky for him alone. Luckily, he's got Finja! She's a real detective like Sherlock Holmes, and she even has a Watson (her dog). Will they be able to solve the puzzle together?

"Ulf K. is the poet of Germany's comic scene."
 – SPIEGEL Online

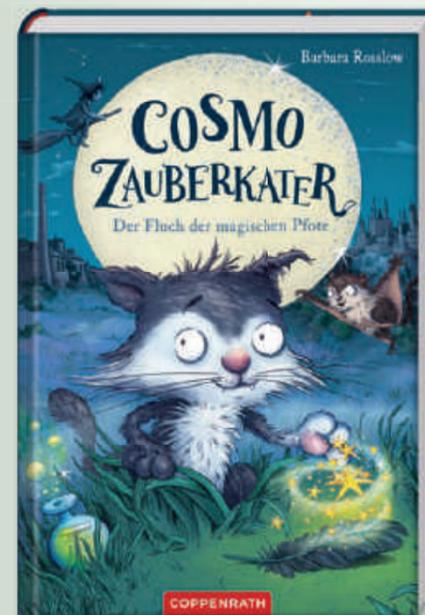

Jutta Wilke spent a few years working as a lawyer, but finally hung up her robe in order to concentrate on what she does best: telling stories. She doesn't like any kind of barrier very much, and would rather dance to the beat of a different drum – and so her writing knows no limits, either. She enjoys writing equally for younger and older readers.

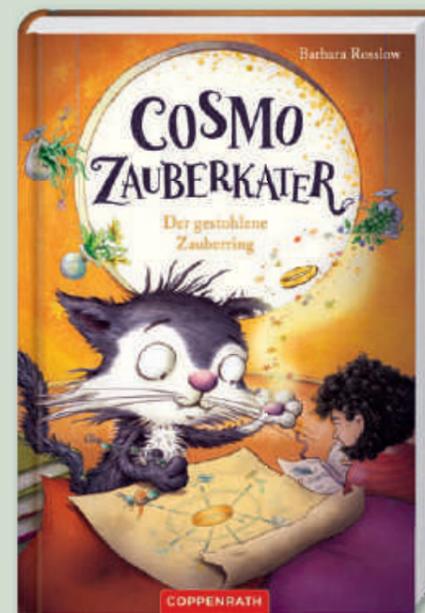

Ulf K. is a cartoonist and illustrator. He won the 2004 Max und Moritz prize for "Best German-language comic artist". His drawings are published in the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung and the children's magazine Gecko, among others.

Cosmo Magicat series
 Each title:
 Barbara Rosslow / Dorothee Mahnkopf
 9+ / 240 pp. / hardcover with holographic foil / € 14.00
 All rights available

- Secret heroes: the animal familiars of witches and wizards
- Imaginative world with enchanting characters, from the mind of debut author Barbara Rosslow
- 12,000 copies sold within the first six months

Cosmo the little stray cat can hardly believe it: he has been chosen as an animal familiar and is sent to the Wickfield school of magic. They are going to train him to serve a child witch or wizard. But somehow, everything goes wrong: he feels travel sick every time he gets on a broom; he flunks his herb-sniffing exam; and to top it all he is assigned to a clumsy little witch called Aywa. But things are about to get even worse: Cosmo discovers he can do magic – which is strictly forbidden for animals. And that hasn't escaped the notice of the dark mages...

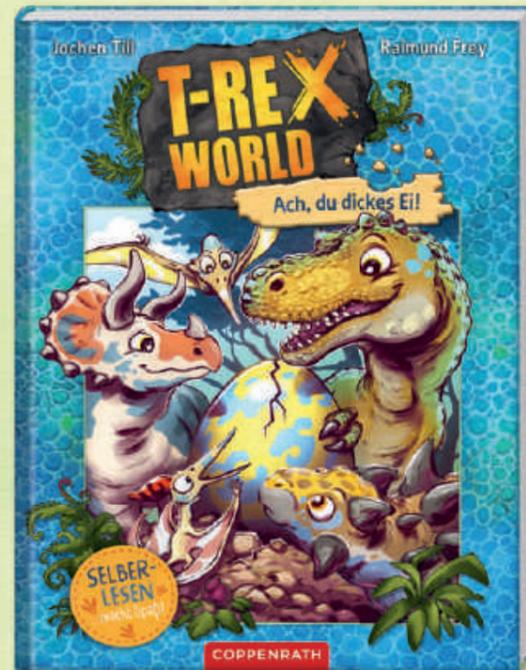

Magic school is finally starting! The magical girl Aywa and her animal companion, Cosmo the cat, enthusiastically move into the school for magical elements. Although the fact that Cosmo has magical powers is supposed to remain an absolute secret, the cat has to keep doing magic for Aywa in secret, because the clumsy student still hasn't got her magical powers under control. But soon the two of them have a much bigger problem: when sinister ghost dogs suddenly appear in the castle and threaten Cosmo, things get really dangerous – for Cosmo and the whole school ...

Dorothee Mahnkopf studied visual communication. Since then, she has been working as an illustrator for magazines, and publishers of school and children's books.

Barbara Rosslow is a passionate walker who loves the woods, and her favourite things to observe there are bewitched hollow trees and enchanted streams. She also has a sideline in organising and managing social and cultural projects. She lives in Basel with her family – very close to the edge of the woods.

T-Rex World series

Each title:
Jochen Till / Raimund Frey
6+ / 72 pp. / hardcover with relief varnish / 4-colour print / € 9.00

Rights sold to (series): Portugal (Portuguese World)

- T-Rex World, now for early readers: funny series by Jochen Till
- Illustrated by T-Rex World illustrator Raimund Frey
- With facts about the most popular prehistoric giants

What on earth is that? Boing, the little T-Rex, and his dino-friends are more than a bit surprised to discover a large egg in the middle of the jungle. Who does it belong to? And what kind of baby dino might be inside? The five of them make a huge effort to try and hatch the mysterious egg. Not a very good idea, as Boing and his friends soon find out...

Please don't Eat! · Vol. 1
ISBN 978-3-649-64316-6

The little T-Rex has barely hatched from his egg, and already he's turning his parents' world upside down. Not only does he want to be called BOING instead of GROOAR – he doesn't stick to any of the rules his parents have given him for his first day in the forest, either: 1. Roar at everything, and 2. Eat anyone smaller than him.

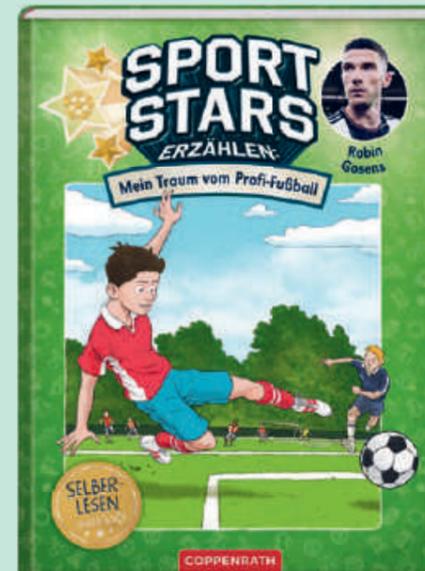

Pling, the triceratops girl, doesn't seem very impressed with Boing's attempts at roaring and eating. But she does introduce him to her dino gang and teaches him all the really important things in prehistoric life: finding friends, having fun... and not getting caught by the big carnivores!

Jochen Till was born in Frankfurt in 1966, and actually wanted to be a rock star. Despite his undisputable lack of interest in bookkeeping, he graduated from commercial high school at the age of 22. Nine years later, his first book was published. After spending a few years working in a comic-book store, he now devotes himself entirely to writing – and enjoying numerous TV series.

Raimund Frey was already decorating his room with dinosaur characters as a child. After school he studied design communication and then went freelance. For Coppenrath, he illustrates the T-Rex World series among other things. He also still collects dinos.

All rights available

- New reading start-format: professional sportsmen and women on their road to success
- European Football Championship 2024 in Germany
- National player Robin Gosens tells his inspiring success story that gives courage

Becoming a professional soccer player – many children dream of it. After his first visit to the stadium, Robin can no longer let go of this wish. From now on, he spends every free minute on the field. But Robin's path to the professional club is different to most: without a youth training centre, but with a lot of passion, discipline and the right amount of composure. International player Robin Gosens tells his story in a rousing and honest way: from his first game with the Bambinis, to his big goal for the German national team.

Robin Gosens was born in 1994. At the age of 18, he made the leap into the Dutch professional football league. After further spells at Atalanta Bergamo and Inter Milan, among others, the left-back has been playing for 1. FC Union Berlin since August 2023. Gosens has been a member of the German national team since August 2020. Gosens is involved with his own foundation "Träumen lohnt sich" (Dreaming is worth it), which promotes inclusive sports programmes for children and young people.

- You just have to love bumblebee boy Jimmy!
- Told with humour and charm by Barbara Rosslow
- Everyone finds their place in this insect gang

When Jimmy sees the light of day in the beehive, everyone thinks: What's that big lug? Why does he eat so much, why does he growl so loudly, why is he much too big? Nobody has any idea why Jimmy is so different - least of all himself. But then he meets Bruno the scatterbrained may beetle, Helga the shy blowfly and Oscar the earthworm (pardon me: the constrictor snake). The four of them form the Big Buzzers Club. And when Jimmy meets Bonnie, the bumblebee princess, everything changes for him...

 5+ / 112 pp. / hardcover with relief varnish / 4-colour print / € 14.00
 ISBN 978-3-649-64626-6
 All rights available

- The Unicorn that said NO meets Pipi Longstocking – modern fantasy-heroine speaks to children from the soul
- A plea for diversity
- Author Zoe Magdalena tells the story in a refreshingly cheeky voice and with plenty of humour

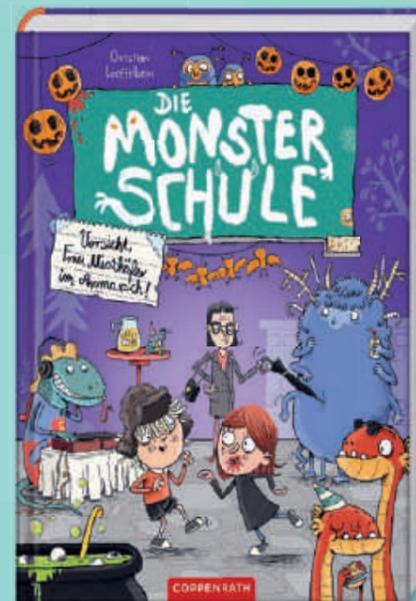

Mina finally wants to be a real fairy. Just like Grandma, the good-humoured fairy, or Bert, the tooth fairy. But – OH DEAR! When Mina receives the long-awaited letter with her magic power, nobody can decipher it. Fairy queen Mirabella's handwriting really is a terrible scrawl. "Then I'll just ask her myself!" thinks Mina, grabs Granny's dachshund Rüdiger and the adventurous travelling wart Wanda and flutters off. But the fairy queen lives on cloud nine. And if you want to get there, you first have to get past the field of evil flowers, the forest of snivelling trees and the beach of strong mermaids. If things go well...

Zoe Magdalena was born in Berlin in 1994. Her first young adult novel was published by Ullstein in 2016. She regularly organises poetry slams across Germany. She has been writing for "heute show" (TV) since 2021. She previously studied screenwriting at International Film School in Cologne.

Alexandra Helm studied design in Offenbach, and later decided to become an illustrator. She lives with her boyfriend and her lively miniature pinscher Quinn in a cosy flat in an old building. Alexandra Helm's favourite thing to do is illustrate children's books - they make her literally jump out of bed with joy in the morning.

Look Out, Fart-Pill Plot - Vol. 1

Look out, monster fart! Lukas is more than a little surprised when his uncle, Professor Graghul, inducts him into the secrets of his school. Because he isn't educating naughty children there, as the people who live in the neighbouring village of Gammelbrügg believe, but real monsters! There is Whinny Horsebum (an eight-armed Octopusterix who is obsessed with cleaning), Jimmy the Werewolf and his brothers, and Hotzpeputz the Cyclops, who brings everyone their bedtime milk. They all work very hard at their lessons, hoping to be released into the human world one day as well-brought-up model monsters. But suddenly, the eager monster students start letting out quite terribly unrefined farts. And Lukas suspects something very fishy indeed is going on...

Christian Loeffelbein studied German, literature and art history, and then worked as a journalist. He now lives in Hamburg and thinks up exciting stories for readers both young and old.

Nikolai Renger studied visual communication. He is a freelance illustrator and has been working at Atelier Remise since 2013. He has been illustrating children's books for various publishers since 2015.

Something unimaginable has happened: Princess Caramella, the very first princess that the little dragon kidnapped, who decided to have a holiday in the dragon village rather than being rescued (fire, smoke and deckchairs!) – this princess is feeling homesick! And so she has decided to travel home to her royal palace. But not without her dragon! What, the little dragon is supposed to become a palace pet? A lap dragon?! Never, never, never. But of course, he'll still get Caramella safely home. A dragon always keeps his word. A quick flight there, and an even quicker flight back. How hard can it be? A new robber-dragon adventure from Dagmar H. Mueller – making fun of every last cliché with hilarious results!

- Protecting species right on the doorstep: inventor Emil saves a meadow

A scratching at the door to the inventor's laboratory makes Emil Einstein sit up and take notice. Who's coming to visit? Emil is amazed when he sees a rabbit, a frog and a bumblebee perched on the doorstep. What the animals tell him with the help of the animal chatter machine is not so nice. The natural meadow next to the animal shelter is to become a building site. The home of countless meadow dwellers is in danger! The construction vehicles are already moving in and a high fence is being erected. Emil is desperate. Can he really find something to stop the diggers?

The Magic Wanted-Dog Sensor · Vol. 4 NEW

One day, a sweet dog with a great mop of fur follows Emil home from school, right to his front door. Emil can hardly believe his luck. Maybe this furry new friend is looking for a new home... with him? It's such a shame that the dog runs off again as soon as Emil's parents try to treat his sore paws. But Emil doesn't give up, and tinkers tirelessly with his new invention: the magic wanted-dog sensor! He doesn't notice, however, that the three animal friends he already has are getting quite jealous...

Suza Kolb has been writing stories ever since she was a little girl, with cheeky, wild heroes on four legs – or sometimes two. Eventually she turned her hobby into a career, and has now written many successful books and audiobooks about her unusual heroes. Suza Kolb gets her ideas for them largely from what she sees around her. She not only met Albert Einstein in person; as a child, she was once taken out in a taxi to go shopping with Einstein's secretary.

Anja Grote studied design communication and illustration. After spending a few years as a graphic designer, she (finally) settled on illustration in 2016. Since then, she has been surrounded by cheeky astronauts, little Littels and clever animals

© Yayo Kawamura
Yayo Kawamura grew up in Tokyo. With an artistic upbringing that included painting, graphic design, sculpture and goldsmithing, she always had a particular fascination for drawing and painting. In 1989 Yayo Kawamura moved to Berlin and studied design communication there. She now lives in Kreuzberg with her family and her dog. She works for several children's publishers, has illustrated numerous books, and delights every day in discovering new characters and stories.

- The special heartfelt project from the successful Fartypops team Kai Lüftner and Wiebke Rauers
- Dark, narrative, thought-provoking – a story about well-trodden paths and a plea for daring to break new ground

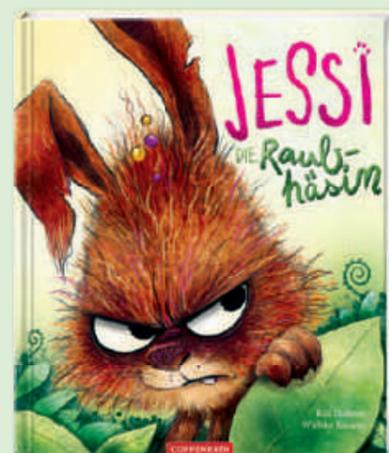

Every day, Little Demon makes his rounds through the underworld, just as he is told to do. Demon's feet are heavy, his eyes bored and tired. His only joy is his little companion, Fly, who is always buzzing around him. But then it happens: the leash tied to the fly breaks (or is it cut?). Fly disappears up into the upper world and Demon has to make a decision: Will he stay on his same old path or will he venture down a new one?

Cute and cuddly? That's so yesterday! Jessi the little hare is thoroughly fed up of her life as a fluffy pet, and runs away. Wild and free, she now roams the woods, her formerly pink collar turning grey, one ear bent, a tooth broken. But one day, when she rescues a guineapig – sorry, an ARMYpig – Jessi finds herself with problems she never dreamt of: the clumsy army pig has got it into his head that Jessi really needs a friend. Even if Jessi has a very different opinion on the matter...

Kai Lüftner has worked as a street worker, cabaret artist, social worker, pizza driver, bouncer, songwriter, comedy author, concert organiser, radio editor and in old people's and children's homes. Today he earns his living as a musician, audio book editor, director and children's book author.

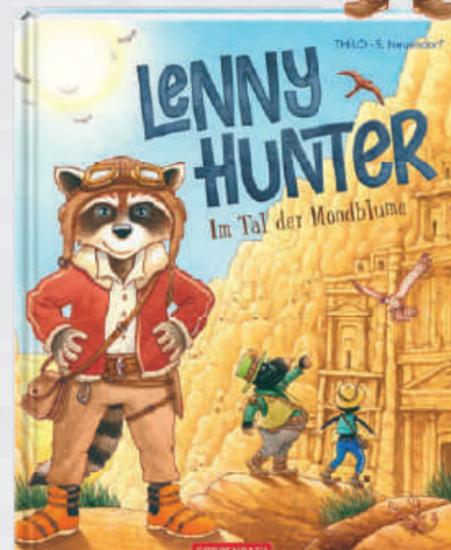

Wiebke Rauers studied communication design in Düsseldorf. After working as a character designer in an animation film studio for several years, she went freelance in 2015 and now works on apps, exhibitions and everything to do with illustration. For Coppenrath, she has successfully illustrated books such as Fartypops, the Rattle-Dragon, Jessi, the Looting Bunny, Memento Monstrum, and several volumes of "Meja Mermaid."

- New character from THILO and Silvio Neuendorf
- Strong character(s) for children to identify with
- Adventurous expeditions and exciting puzzles

Lenny Hunter and his friends Cleo und Marvin have been alerted: the Red Paw, the world's most dangerous criminal gang, are searching for the magic sand timer. It can be used to turn back time for a moment – and it doesn't bear thinking about what will happen if Don Wuff and his cronies Ki-Ti and Little Knife get their paws on this precious artefact! They take Rusty the old plane and set off for the distant jungle – will they manage to find the sand timer before the Red Paw do, and get it to safety?

Who wouldn't want to be invisible? Just for a brief moment. Lenny Hunter and his two friends Cleo and Marvin from the Mystery Crew are sure: that's completely impossible! But then Grandpa Romulus tells them about the moonflower, whose fruits make you invisible for a short time. It only blooms every 187 years, when the constellation of the desert wolf is visible. When Lenny, Cleo and Marvin discover the desert wolf in the night sky through Grandpa's telescope shortly afterwards, they set off in their aeroplane Rusty to search for the moonflower in the North African desert. But Don Woof and his henchmen Little Knife and Ki-Ti from the Red Paw are already hot on their heels...

Even at a young age, Silvio Neuendorf drew everything that came under his nose and his talent for drawing did not go unnoticed by his primary school teacher. "I'm very lucky to be able to pursue a profession that I really enjoy and that I only very, very rarely really see as work – and, of course, it's also wonderful to be your own boss!" His favourite illustration subjects are adventurous and fantastic stories of all kinds, but also everything that takes place on, in and under the water!

- Important learning effect: self-assertion and constructive use of anger
- Told with humour and friendly illustrations
- Sympathetic character with high potential to identify with

Today the Grumbletroll and his friends are going on a trip! They want to find out what it looks like on the other side of the forest, because they know everything back home. They discover a fantastic adventure playground that far exceeds their wildest dreams – but they also meet a dog, a cat and a chicken who behave like a whole herd of elephants in a china store! When the cat laughs at the bird because it can't climb well, there is a quiet rumbling in the Grumbletroll's tummy. When the chicken breaks the rubber boat and blames it on the hedgehog, there is an even louder crackling and thunder. And when the dog finally pushes everyone off the slide because he wants to be the first to slide, the Grumbletroll can no longer contain his rage. It has to get out. Now. Right now...

Steffi & Michael Gerharz live in Troisdorf, near Cologne, with their three children. Under their brand name, aprilkind, they design and develop stories and cuddly toys that children play with all over the world. The idea for the Grumbletroll came to them when their youngest daughter was sitting across the breakfast table from them, arms defiantly folded, sulking and grumbling. They designed the little troll as a transformable soft toy, with great attention to detail, so that you can't help but love him even when he's angry – and developed a concept for a series of picture books, working with Stephan Pricken and Barbara van den Speulhof to bring them to life.

Barbara van den Speulhof

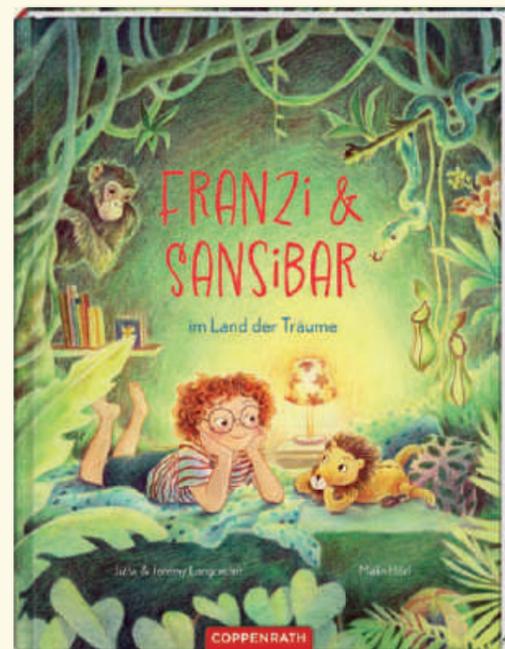

As a passionate children's book author, director and producer of (children's) audio dramas, Barbara van den Speulhof knows that the topic of anger plays a large role in a lot of families – and for that reason, she was very taken with the idea of the little troll who struggles to keep a lid on his annoyance. She tells these stories very sensitively – with relatable, lovable characters and a child's-eye view.

Stephan Pricken

As the father of a son, Stephan Pricken isn't a total stranger to outbursts of rage, either. After following some odd tangents into mechanical engineering and architecture, he trained first as a primary-school teacher with a focus on art, and then as a graphic designer in Münster. He lives in the city with his family, and likes to watch other people gardening.

- A warm-hearted story for dreamers of all ages

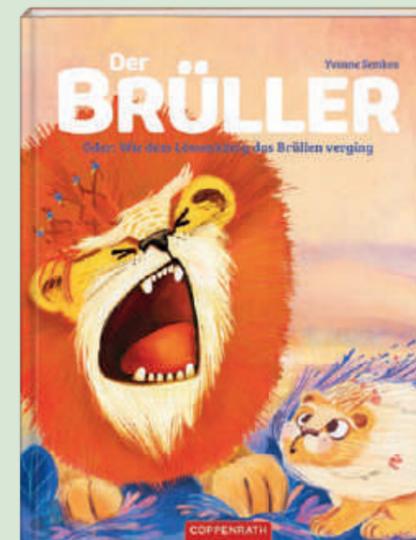

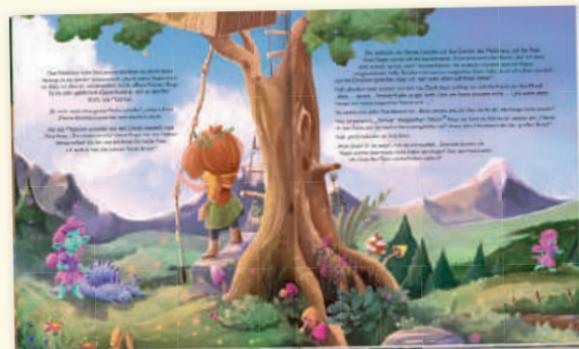

Two perfect companions on the road to sleep: Franzi and Sansibar are the best of friends. Sansibar, the little soft-toy lion, would like to go to sleep, but there's only one thing Franzi wants: adventure! And it has to be exciting and a bit tense, too – otherwise it's not an adventure. Once they've packed a compass, telescope, two packets of drinking chocolate and some biscuits into the rucksack, the pair set off for the distant jungle world. What a lot there is to discover there! And is there really an adventure waiting there for them?

- Illustrated with attention to detail by Anja Grote
- In co-operation with Europa-Park

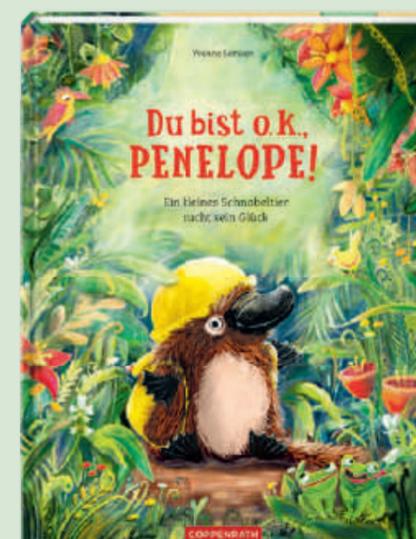

When Fina wakes up one morning in her house tree, she can hardly believe her eyes: a lively little dragon, all in purple, comes tumbling in through the window. And sitting on its back is a tiny green creature: a Yomi girl called Ruby! She is in great distress because she has lost her magical gemstone – and with it her gift of being able to talk to dragons. But what's even worse: Her home, the Yomi village, is in danger! The invisible protective wall only works if all the Yomis carry their stones with them. And now, of all times, the dangerous witch Alkaria is roaming the mountains again, as always in search of the Yomi village... Can Fina help the Yomis find the stone again and protect their village?

- A picture book about different approaches to life
- Important subjects: friendship and community
- Humorous storytelling and lively illustrations

Leonidas the lion king knows what's what. And he says so, too. Very loudly! Because that's the only way to get what he wants. He's sure about that. And Leonidas isn't very impressed that his son Leo would much rather play hide-and-seek with his friends or splash about in the river than learn from him all the things he will need to know as a future king. But then the lion king's boisterous manner gets him into trouble – will Leo and his friends be the ones who can help him out of it...?

- Important topics: Being different and making friends
- Diversified illustrations with lots of details
- Likeable characters

Penelope is different from the other animals. She has thick, scruffy fur, a beak as flat as a board, funny waddling feet with sharp claws and a bushy tail. She can't land on the water like a goose, lick honey like a bear, roll backwards into the water like an otter and gnaw branches like a beaver. How can she ever make friends? But does friendship really depend on being and looking exactly like the other ones? A story about being different and feeling good about yourself.

Snorri is excited to discover a very rare muddle shell in Aquarian's room. Its mother-of-pearl shimmers in countless colours, it is coiled like a snail shell, has arms like a starfish – and would look splendid in his cave! Right beside the collection of Viking helmets. But Aquarian doesn't want to give up the shell. What now? Quick as a flash, Snorri takes the shell from the shelf and makes off with it. He just wants to borrow it for a little while – but then the shell falls to the ground and breaks. Oh no! What if Aquarian finds out...

A tumultuous new adventure for Snorri, in which the little sixtopus learns how important trust and honesty are in a friendship.

On a rainy day, Princess Lillifee's friends want her to tell them a fairy tale. But the witch Alba has borrowed the thick book of fairy tales and Lillifee gets a few things mixed up while telling them by heart. Clearly, they need the storybook back and set off for the enchanted forest. Even before they reach the witch's house, big red boots come running towards them and inside, the little witch lies snoring next to a spinning wheel. Oh dear, Alba has conjured the figures and other things out of the storybook and now they are all over the enchanted forest while Alba falls into a deep sleep. And the storybook is full of empty spaces... Will Princess Lillifee and her friends manage to get everything Alba has conjured away back into the storybook in time...?

The underwater palace is a frenzy of activity: it's just a few days until the birthday party they are holding for the ancient crab Gustav Crabcake. Mr Crabcake is about to turn 300 years old. But then an invitation is suddenly turned down – Mr Crabcake doesn't want to come to his own birthday party. While her mermaid sisters are still busy preparing for the big event, Nella Nixie hurries off to see Mr Crabcake.

Because if there is one person who can change the old gentleman's mind, it's the bubbly Nella. Will she manage it? And if she does – what on earth should she get the old crab for his birthday?

Sara Ball was born in Munich in 1944. Her first picture book was published when she was just 16. Since then, there have been over 100 more books, and she has become one of the most successful picture-book authors in Germany and beyond. For several years, she worked as a scientific illustrator for the national prehistoric collection and the state office for historic preservation in Munich. In 1971, she made the leap to independence and has been working as a freelance artist ever since.

- Enchanting Christmas story
- About wishing and helping one another

When the Earth is cold and it gets dark early in the evening, the Little Christmas Angel always has lots to do. That's when many, many wish lists flutter up into the sky. The Little Christmas Angel reads every last one of them. But then: disaster! A gust of snow blows through the pile and scatters the lists right across the sky. The Little Christmas Angel manages to gather most of them up. Thankfully! But two of the lists end up on the Earth... Will the children's wishes be granted anyway?

- 24 stories and 8 poems
- One story for every day of Advent

The first elf's name is Pino, and he's very excited. Santa is bringing the Christmas lists from all the human children. He'll be back in 23 days. And then it will be Christmas. The clever elves have a lot to do before then: baking and cooking, filing and whittling, sewing and even knitting. And they have to get all of the presents ready during Advent. Will they manage it in time?
