- A warm-hearted participatory picture book on the theme of mindfulness
- Shows how strongly we experience the world through our five senses

One day, fox girl Emmi wonders what the world outside her home looks like, and together with her best friend Luna, she embarks on an exciting journey. The two cuddle through fluffy dandelion fields, explore dense fir forests and dance through the warm summer rain. Along the way, they discover what happiness feels like, what trust smells like, what joy tastes like, and what peace looks like. And in the end, Emmi finds out what love sounds like.

An enchanting picture book story that explains why it is so important to grow beyond oneself and explore the world – and why home is still the most beautiful place.

- Important parenting topic: quarrels in the family or among friends
- Humorous picture book story about how everyone has different strengths and preferences

Robin Mio and the young wild boar Lu are best friends. But during a „Mio and Lu spa afternoon“, they get into an argument: what’s more fun, warbling a song or wallowing in the mud? They just can’t agree, and in the end they’re angry with each other!

But by the next morning, the anger has faded, and the two think things over: Of course Mio thinks it’s better to sing out loud as he has such a beautiful voice after all. And wallowing in the dirt is a lot more fun when you have bristly fur like Lu. Mio and Lu realize that they each have their own strengths and that they can have a great time together despite or even because of their difference.
