

The magical eyes of Stonehill – Juma Kliebenstein, Monika Parciak

The mystery adventure for boys and girls aged 9 and over

Lucy lives with her five siblings and her parents in the sleepy little town of Stonehill. But from the moment Viola Burrow enters Lucy's class with her long black hair and purple clothes, nothing is as it used to be. Mom's emerald ring disappears just as Viola comes to visit and the actually nasty class teacher lets Viola bring her mysterious cat Cleopatra with the purple eyes to school - despite the strict ban on animals! But on the school trip at the latest, Lucy is quite sure: Viola is hiding something from Burrow.

With suspense, humor and surprising twists, bestselling author Juma Kliebenstein tells the story of what really happened in Stonehill.

Fuck it – Frank Maria Reifenberg

An impressive and fast-paced novel for young people aged 14 and over

"Fuck it." Mirco and Fabian meet with this sentence. In the truest sense of the word, because Mirco lives by the motto: strike first, ask questions later. Nevertheless, the two become friends. Something like. At least they set off together. They don't know exactly where they are going. The main thing is to get away. Far away from Mirco's girlfriend, who threw him out, and away from Fabian's father, who would rather have a son without Tourette's syndrome. But they don't want their escape to be inconspicuous and quiet, they want it to be adrenaline-filled and spectacular. Just "fuck it".

The skyscraper cat

Oliver Wnuk, Andrea Stegmeier

A picture book from the age of 4 about openness and tolerance with a lovable protagonist

Everyone loves snow, the skyscraper cat! In this atmospherically illustrated picture book, we follow the cute white cat through the individual floors of the building and take a look at the different apartments and families. As different as the individual residents of the tower block are, the clever cat knows how to skillfully introduce them to each other - and how important it is to talk to each other.

Nobody really needs boys!

(Volume 2) ... and still the stupid heart beats

Patricia Schröder

A magical story about falling in love for girls aged 10 and over

Hannah is really fed up with boys! She can't understand why Elias hasn't come through the closet to her since they last met. She had just started to kind of like him. Well, then she doesn't! Hannah's best friends aren't any help either, because they think Elias is just making things up and Hannah actually just wants a boyfriend. And of course Elias turns up just when Hannah is head over heels in chaos. How can she explain to him that she doesn't care about him at all?

What dragons do on Christmas - a read-aloud story in 24 chapters

Hans-Henning Callsen, Lisa Rammensee

Advent calendar to read aloud

The little dragon Alfi is certain: he really wants to experience Christmas. It's just too bad that he's a real sneeze dragon and they hibernate. But this year, chaotic Alfi has built himself a snow-sneezing alarm clock and sneezes himself awake just in time for December 1st. Well, that could be fun. With a fine sense of humor and a good dose of situation comedy, Hans-Henning Callsen tells the story of little dragon Alfi's first Christmas in 24 chapters, and of everything that can go wrong on the way there - baking cookies, decorating the Christmas tree and reciting festive poems - almost everything ends in chaos and yet everyone agrees in the end: Christmas is best celebrated all together.

Bammel - No fear of evil spirits

Christopher Tauber, Timo Grubing

Exciting mystery adventure for boys and girls aged 11 and over

Three extraordinary heroes that you simply have to love. Soro, Emrah and Maya meet by chance at their little siblings' St. Martin's lantern parade - actually a completely boring event for three 13-year-olds. But this year everything is somehow different. Deep fog hangs in the forest and as soon as a glowing blue figure appears, it is clear that something is not quite right. When a strange force turns the other people into zombies, the three of them have to take action. On their rapid escape through the forest, action stunts, crazy inventions and goose bumps are guaranteed, and they not only have to save the world from the reign of the ghosts, but also become true friends along the way.

Aurora Academy (Volume 1) - When the Northern Lights Awaken

Romance and magic in a magical setting in the Arctic Circle for ages 12 and up

When Yara learns that she is an aurora borealis in human form on her 14th birthday, she is completely taken aback. The magic of the Northern Lights is controlled by strong emotions! In order to control her powers, Yara has to attend a boarding school for northern lights from all over the world, the Aurora Academy. There she meets the principal's son, Davin, who is very different from the action-packed Finn, who explores the Arctic Circle with his father. But there is one unbreakable rule at the academy: never fall in love, because your feelings make your powers unpredictable! And Yara has to make a decision: Should she follow her heart, or will she possibly jeopardize the top-secret existence of the Northern Lights?
