

Papperlapapp, the bilingual picture book magazine for children aged five and up.

Papperlapapp

Concept

Colourful and imaginative, fun and thought-provoking, cheerful and sweet, exciting and interesting – Papperlapapp has plenty of surprises in store with its expressive pictures and vivid language. The unputdownable stories, written by renowned authors, are a delight to read aloud, making children's first step into learning to read an enjoyable one. Established and up-and-coming illustrators from all over the world create visual imagery that speaks for itself.

Papperlapapp covers all sorts of topics of interest to children, such as friendship, outer space, courage, cooking, bees and being unique. With features that invite the reader to marvel and wonder, to read aloud and keep turning pages, to join in and get creative, Papperlapapp ignites the love of language and the joy of reading.

The quality and age-appropriateness of the content is guaranteed by an advisory board of experts in the fields of early language development, child psychology, science and design.

Early language development

Papperlapapp contributes to early language development: the magazines are designed to complement the curriculum in nursery and primary school. In the ideal scenario, the stories would be read aloud at home in the child's first language. This way, children become familiar with the content. Then they participate more actively and with more confidence when the stories are read again in the second language in the first or second term of primary school or in nursery. This playful approach makes it easier for children to learn a second language.
