A scientist is about to have a crazy idea!

The cook will probably oversalt the soup? Will the fisherman find a fat booty on the hook in a second?

Or will everything turn out quite differently?
Ten funny pictures that arouse curiosity invite you to invent stories, because when you look at them, you will involuntarily ask yourself: »So what's next?« If you scan the QR code every illustration comes with, you will find 3 animated films that offer ideas of how the story might continue!

Mascha's Dazzling Years

- about a modern female poet who had to flee two wars during childhood and adulthood

Mascha Kaléko was a popular poet in 20th century

Germany. Behind the poems we find the eventful life of an unusual woman: the childhood of an untamed girl, the first escape in the turmoil of the First World War, right into the middle of the lively cultural life of the 1920s in Berlin: Mascha's dazzling years! But her life also tells of the dark sides in history: of expulsion and another flight, and of the difficulty of missing one's mother tongue as a poet in a foreign country.

A biographical picture book about the early years of one of the most famous German-speaking poets and a close observer of her time.

Bruno's and Marla's parents decide to move out of the city, on a farm in the countryside. Luckily, there are also Gustav und Ellis who have moved there, too. Together, they accept the local boys' Mike & Kevin's challenge to test their courage. They should secretly enter villager Burkhardt's hut to try to get back a soccer ball signed by a famous soccer player that Burkhardt had confiscated from the boys in the past. But Burkhardt seems to be a scary guy. He almost gets a hold of Bruno who has to leave back Kevin's backpack.

When Bruno's parents find out about it, the kids know that they need to go back to cranky Burkhardt to say they are sorry.

Just as everything seems to turn out fine, the situation gets out of control and Burkhardt's hut burns down. Luckily he and all his animals can be saved.

Finally Mike & Kevin tell the truth: Burkhardt is their uncle! When the boys' parents sold the farm on which Bruno lives now, Burkhardt did not get his share and from then on lived in loneliness and poverty.

Bruno and his new friends decide: Burkhardt and his animals can live with them from now on, after all Burkhardt grew up on the farm and justice needs to be restored!

Coco Can!

- a book that reassures little ones: reading the clock, tying shoes.... no worries, you will learn it!
- don't give up!

Children have to learn quite a lot. So little Coco sometimes reaches her limits: tying shoes, reading the clock, not being afraid of dogs, balancing – you can't learn all that so easily in a hurry. But Dad firmly believes in it and tells Coco about her ancestors, who were nothing less than masters in tying shoes, reading watches or taming tigers. And lo and behold: With a little practice, Coco can also succeed in the difficult tasks – after all, this is a family tradition. But Coco is also particularly good at one thing: staying up late in the evening. The tired dad doesn't seem to know that staying up late is a family tradition. He'll learn it!

Emil is sitting on his bed and wonders what to do.
Until there is a knock and a strange, tall figure snakes its way into his room. It introduces itself as the »long boredom«. Emil has the idea to play together, but the long boredom doesn't want to play. It won't read to him either and it can't even make up stories. What a boring creature!
So Emil invents an adventure story himself. The long boredom is not interested and would prefer Emil to stop. But he takes a liking to his own story and has more and more ideas of how it could continue. He has his stuffed crocodile and his doll fighting dragons, hunting for a treasure and he builds castle from boxes and pillows. When Emil has almost forgotten about his guest, the long boredom gets a thin voice and shrinks more and more. Until it decides it has to leave.

Toni watches as the apartment is transformed into rooms with piles of boxes. He and his family are moving, that's quite exciting. What comes with the new apartment? And what do you have to part with? Will neighbour Mrs. Myer and her rabbit move with them? How to make sure that Toni's favourite toy, the pony, won't get lost? How do you even know which box contains what?

On the day of the move, Toni even sees furniture fly. And many kind neighbours welcome them in the new apartment. But where is the pony?

Ronald is a knight as he should be. He has a castle and a horse, a sword and a lance, a loyal squire and in his head nothing more than tournaments and dragon fights. At least that's what everyone thinks.

But Knight Ronald has a secret: he is passionate about sewing women's dresses. As Ronald is afraid that his hobby would not be compatible with a knight's honour he claims that his sister Kathy would sew these clothes. Only – Ronald has no sister at all! When the Queen is about to visit wanting to order dresses from Kathy in person, Ronald needs to come up with an idea: His squire and best friend Ulrich finally decides to dress up as Kathy. Yet, the Queen detects the disguise and wants to hear the truth. To Ronald's big surprise, she is not angry - on the contrary: Such a gifted tailor is exactly what she needs. From now on Ronald will be the court's dressmaker!

An evil plan trying to put pressure on the Ravenbeats to sell their property so Kniveltrue can build a holiday park there. But where is the diamond?

When it comes out of Lady Ravenbeat's black chicken, the children seek for justice and decide to put it somewhere in a public place and »find« it in order to collect the reward for the finder. The investor and the policewoman are present, too, and accuse each other.

The kids share the reward with the Ravenbeats who can finally renovate their house.

And Milena's family will surely be back for the next holidays!

Since Rosa's best and only friend Fred spends her time only with her new boyfriend, there is this huge gap.

And just now, two things happen that confuse Rosa even more: Kim is new to the class and Rosa is fascinated from the first second. A friendship develops between the two.

And then there is this letter from Rosa's unknown father.

Out of the blue, he gives her an overgrown garden at the town border, with a hut, hammocks, and a fireplace.

Together, Rosa and Kim turn the garden into a small paradise, grow vegetables, feel free and independent – like two revolutionaries.

Rosa senses that the relationship between her and Kim is more than friendship. But is it normal for her to love Kim when Kim is neither a boy nor a girl?
